ARM TORN IN MACHINERY.

Patrick Moran of Fowler Gets Caught inCogwheels.

Rutland, Nov. 13.—Patrick Moran, a millwright employed at the mill of the Rutland-Florence marble company at Fowler, had his right arm badly mangled Monday while at his work. He had climbed up over a gang to fit a loose bolt, when the sleeve of his coat caught in the gear overhead and his arm was drawn into the cogwheels. By main strength he pulled his arm out of the machinery, leaving his sleeve and a four inches in size. No bones were broken, but the muscles were badly mangled, and it will be fully two months before the man can resume his work.

Former University of Vermont Boy.

After nearly a year without hearing from their only son, Carl Weaver, Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Weaver of Manchester, N. H., received a telegram Monday from Las Vegas, Nev., which told them the sad news of their son's death. The message is from H. M. Lillis, the coroner at Las Vegas, and merely states the fact of the death of Carl Weaver and asks what shall be done with the body.

Mr. Weaver has been absent nine years. He is remembered here as a college athlete and a base ball player.

Mr. Weaver graduated from Phillips Exeter academy, and from there he went to the university of Vermont. He left the university nine years ago, before completing his course, then a young man of only 20 years, to go to the Spanish war, enlisting in the 46th regiment. He served also in the Philippines after which he became interested in mining. He went to Australia and South Africa, where he engaged for five years as a promoter of mining prospects and in the last letter, received by Dr.
Weaver last Christmas, he tells of planning the last year in Nevada, Oregon and Idaho. In one of his letters he stated that he had been very very successful.
The body will be sent on from the west and the funeral will be held at the home in New Boston.

A Significant Prayer.

"May the Lord help you make Bucklin Arnica Salve known to all," writes J. G. Jenkins of Chapel Hill, N. C. It quickly took the pain out of a felon for me and cured it in a wonderfully short time." Rest on earth for sores, burns and wounds. 25¢ at Red Cross pharmacy.

TRouble OVER INVENTION.

End of Bitter Legal Fight Involving Bennington Concerns.

Bennington, Nov. 13.—Word has been received here to the effect that Judge

LeBaron B. Colt of the United States court for the second district has filed at Boston his decision in the long contested case of Charles Cooper of Bennington, vs. the Otis Co. of Ware, Mass.

involving the patent of a certain knitting machine manufactured by Bradford

& Lester, of Bennington. The allegation of the plaintiff, who is a manufacturer of knit goods, was that his patents had been infringed. Judge Colt's decision dismisses the complaint with costs. The case has been bitterly contested in the courts for four years and has prevented the defendants from putting their knitting machines upon the market.

While the nominal defendant in the case was the Otis Co. of Ware, one of the largest manufacturers of knit goods in New England, with an extensive plant near Springfield, the defense was assumed by the Bradford Knitting

Co. of Bennington, manufacturers of the machine involved.

The invention over which the controversy originated related to a circular knitting machine first manufactured to knit stockings and later adapted to the making of underwear.

The defense rested on expert evidence to prove that the leather machine contained several improvements on the Cooper machine.

The defense was able to show that the leather machine was not as good as the Cooper machine.

young women were received by a Handicapped Congregational church on a recent Sunday, just the number that reunited with the church last spring.
